Community-Based Programs

"I understand the importance of McNeil Island as a relief in housing the state's prison population but I also hope this very expensive budget item is not covered at the expense of community-based diversion programs," said Washington State Sen. Marc Gaspard (D-25th District).

Gaspard, a Sumner member of the Senate Ways and Means Committee, was reacting to a proposal by Governor John Spellman that additional funding for McNeil Island be taken from community programs.

Gaspard referred to recent testimony by Amos Reed, Director of the Department of Corrections, at a Ways and Means Committee meeting. Reed told the committee that McNeil Island is one of the most expensive of Washington's prisons and corrections facilities not only because of high per-bed costs but also because the state pays $36,000 a month in rent to the federal government for the prison complex on the island.

"It is very important to question whether McNeil Island is a good idea as a long-term prison site for the state," Gaspard said and added that, unfortunately, it doesn't look as if there are any immediate alternatives.

"Other investments," he said, "might represent better methods of combating the drift to a life of crime.

"The TASC (Treatment Alternatives to Street Crime) program and the Progress House program are two Pierce County diversion ideas that will be affected by the governor's proposed reduction in that area to help pay the McNeil Island bill," Gaspard said.

"These two and other community-based programs," the Senator continued, "can be a way to reduce crime and lighten the load on state prison space."

Gaspard, however, also pointed out that, according to Reed's testimony, much more of today's prison population is considered ineligible for work-release and other diversion programs because of the more serious nature of the crimes they committed. Reed explained to the committee that the percentage of crimes committed against other people is on the rise.

The 25th District State Senator said he has received a large amount of support in the form of letters and phone calls for the community-based programs. The support has come from superior court judges and others who see the results every day.

"This is one of the tough issues the legislature is confronting in the special session," Gaspard noted. "I hope we can arrive at a decision that will best reflect our obligation to work for the prevention of crime, not just the housing of the people already convicted."

To Be Equal
The New Federalism Flops

by Vernon E. Jordan, Jr.

State and local officials applauded President Reagan's plans for a "New Federalism" -- turning federal programs and responsibilities over to state and local governments. Now they are having second thoughts.

The "New Federalism" is striking many of those officials as nothing short of a disaster. More and more, it is beginning to look like a plan to dump problems onto already strained state and local governments unable to deal with them.

Washington shirks its responsibility to meet national needs while pushing local governments to the brink. It transfers red ink from the federal budget to local budgets. In the process it weakens the public's faith in government.

When the "New Federalism" idea raided its head the primacy objections were not fiscal. Civil rights supporters immediately recognized that without federal oversight, block grants would be diverted from the poverty areas for which programs were intended.

The experience of the Community Development Block grants found that

The experience of the Community Development Block Grant program gave a clear signal that block grants are inefficient and often counter-productive.

A recent study of the community development block grants found that many projects don't benefit the poor; local administrative costs are too high, and, contrary to the program's rules, citizen participation in planning and evaluation is feeble.

There is no reason to believe that other block grant programs will be better. There is little oversight to ensure that local governments choose the

Senate Wants Consent For Embargoes

Action taken in the Senate could mean that the next time a President wants to use embargoes on farm product exports as a foreign policy tool, he will need Congressional approval to do so, according to Senator Slade Gorton, (R. Wash.)

An amendment to the Export Administration act, co-sponsored by Gorton, requires the approval of a simple majority in both Houses of Congress for selective embargoes on farm exports imposed by the Presidnet. The amended act passed the Senate by a vote of 66 to 20.

Provisions of the amendment are not applicable in cases of across-the-board trade sanctions against offending nations.

Gorton said he belived the amendment was necessary because of the recent ill-advised use of farm export embargoes. "Singling out farm exports for selective embargoes is extremely injurious to the American farmer and I am not at all convinced that piecemeal trade sanctions are an effective foreign policy tool" Gorton said.

Council Hears Consultant's Reports

Recommendations were presented to the Mayor and members of the City Council last Tuesday as a result of a organizational study of the City of Tacoma Human Development, Human Relations, Community Development and Planning Departments by Ralph Andersen and Associates a consulting firm hired by the City. The recommendations proposed major changes in the organization structure. In all departments staff transfers, reclassifications and the elimination of positions were recommended. According to the Organization Study Executive Summary, the basic purpose was to analye the four departments and related activities to identify improvement opportnities in organization structure inter-and intra-department coordination staffing levels and reporting relationships;and administrative systems.

An estimate of potential cost savings and an implementation plan were also included.

The recommendations included Combining the community development and housing activities of the Community Development Development Department with the Planning Department to create a newly titled department of Planning and Community Develop-

False Alarm Results In Death

By Eugene Ponter

Thursday, November 5th, a police car responding to a false bank alarm struck and killed 27 year old Dane Kurt Walcott.

Walcott was making a left turn onto the intersection of 38th and Steel when the driver of the police car Officer James C. Mattheis, age 25, hit Walcott's vehicle resulting in his neck being broken.

Subsequent to the accident it was learned that Puget Sound National Bank located on 38th and South Tacoma Way was unable to determine the cause of the alarm.

Officer Mattheis was also injured and taken to Tacoma General Hospital and listed in satisfactory condition.

Some witnesses said the marked police car did have its overhead lights flashing, however, the siren wasn t on.

Walcott spent 6 years in the United States Air Force. He was Honorably discharged from McChord AFB in 1978. He later attended Ft. Steilacoom Community College where he was scheduled to graduate December 1981.

Walcott was employed as an exterminator for Orkin Exterminator Service. Walcott was born in Jersey City, New Jersey in 1954.

He is survived by his wife, Boonleange Apple Walcott and their five year old son Jason Kurt. His parents, George and Elizabeth Walcott 3 brothers Brian, Keith and Kent. A grandfather John Theodore Walcott and a host of relatives and friends. Services were held in both Tacoma and Jersey City.

Outside Looking In

The study session held last Tuesday to hear the report of the consultant, Mr. Brown of the Ralph Anderson & Associates about the consolidation of city departments-I hope more thought is given to the actual dollar savings-the report tht we were given was just a summary. However, be that as it may, I can almost predict that this plan has been well thought out by somebody-and I don't mean the consultants-I foresee the demise of Human Development even as a monitoring -body-I surely can not see the non profit organizations becoming able to contract with the city for providing these services when most are dying under the lock of administrative money blues-I will reserve judgement until after the council accepts or rejects the proposals Don't say I didn't tell you "I told you so".

How Quickly Americans Forget.....

America continues to hang on to its racial biasness as in, last hired, first fired; Welcome to the land of the free, as long as your skin isn't Black as a Haitians'.

Asylum was granted for said political reasons to a white Russian child, although his well being wasn't threatened, this action was at the expense of his family unit and the American courts.

Illegal aliens cross our borders into the United States daily as they have for years.

Refugees have been welcomed to this country for decades with open arms at the expense of tax payers both Black and White.

How quickly so many Americans forget what their ancestors must have felt at their first sight of the Statue of Liberty, as they too sailed to our shores, many, many decades ago.

Indochinese refugees were our last set of niggers after the Vietnamese refugees became history. Although these refugees came into the States legally, they to inherited their very own hell.

Now, today, its the Haitian people, wanting for our shores, in spite of a real possibility of death staring them in the face during their voyage and encampment should they arrive safely.

SKINCOLOR SETS TONE FOR REAGAN REFUGEE POLICY

If the Regan Administration has a Haitian refugee policy based on anything other than their black skin, it needs serious clarification.

The Washington Post story which gave a shameful and disgraceful way Haitian migrant workers are treated, went unnoticed by both the White House and congress, other than the Congressional Black Caucus. The reporter spent seven days investigating the Eastern Shore Virginia camps. These are in Representative Paul Trible's district. When we spoke to him about the matter, he said he was not aware of the situation. Well, it's certainly Mr. Trible's duty to see that humane conditions are given serious consideration in his congressional domain, and if he ignores them since ignorance of matters in no excuse, he should not consider reelection. We asked if he were one of the sponsors of Representative Shirley Chisholm's Farmworker Bill of Rights Act, H.R. 4435, he said if we would give him a copy of the bill he would take a look at it. Since it takes into account a correction of inhuman acts in his district, we responded that he should contact Mrs. Chisholm's office for a copy.

H.R. 4435 calls for establishing a United States Commission on Farmworkers. After a one-year study the commission will publish a Farmworkers Bill of Rights subject to congressional review.

Besides placing Haitian refugees in prison camps, the Reagan Administration has implemented a program of interdiction of the Haitian vessels on the high seas. Of course this is not necessary since everybody knows when these boats are leaving and the refugees could be stopped before they leave the Haitian shores.

The Congressional Black Caucus, being greatly infuriated over the interdiction action, called a press conference and denounced the program as a highly flagrant example of racially biased refugee human rights policy. The repressive regime of Duvalier in agreeing to the interdiction proposal is shifting its own responsibility for social justice to others. Surely the Haitian government was really pressured into accepting the program.

The Caucus says it was not surprised by the Administration's interdiction action. "Its alarming tilt toward the racist government of South Africa, its decision to eliminate extended voluntary departure program for Ethiopian nationals are all indicative of this Administration's total disregard for the human rights of Black refugees."

Earlier the Caucus wrote President Reagan a letter stating that interdiction is a clear violation of U.N. Article 13 which is the Universal Declaration of Human Rights which guarantees the right of a person to emigrate. The letter was answered by Max Friedersdorf, saying that they will give consideration to the matter. However, interdiction is proceding.

The State Department said that acceptance of a large number of refugees from the Soviet Union is sending a signal to the Soviets that the United States opposes their violation of the U.N. Declaration. Even though the exit requirements are the same for Haitians and Soviets, to leave their respective countries, the United States deals differently with them.

In freely admitting Indo-Chinese refugees, our government says it can't distinguish between their political or economic reason for coming to this country. Yet, its contention is that Haitians are not fleeing for political reasons, but economic. The U.S. is using Haitian naval personnel on the interdiction boats to seize escaped Haitians. This is considered a sneaky method to get U.S. military involvement in getting greater influence in the Carribbean Islands.

Being fighting mad, the Congressional Black Caucus is taking the following action:

1. It is asking a law firm to investigate legal remedies to halt interdiction both domestically and internationally.
2. It has asked the Subcommittee on Human Rights and International Organizations to hold hearings on the human rights of an interdiction program.
3. The Caucus will be reluctant to support human rights efforts made by their colleagues who have not been supportive of Congressional Black Caucus human rights initiatives made on behalf of black people.
4. The Refugee Act of 1980 passed the House by a four vote margin. The actions of this Administration and Jimmy Carter leave the Caucus with no choice but to reassess its support for the reauthorization of the Refugee Act in 1982.

The Caucus, in speaking of the interdiction policy says, "It is evidence that the Reagan Administration does not have the political maturity to implement a refugee policy which is free of ideological and racial bias. Rather, this Administration has chosen to align itself with racist elements at home and abroad."

JOY TO THE WORLD

As the holidays draw near, most of us have high hopes of being together with family and friends, exchanging gifts, feeling the love and joy of the season.

Some lonely people, or families barely making ends meet, come to The Salvation Army at Christmastime.

The Army provides dinners, companionship, perhaps toys or warm clothing—and sometimes it helps the drifter or the troubled family to make a new start in life.

Thanks to your support, The Salvation Army offers year-round programs to reach out to youngsters, families, oldsters; to the alcoholic, discharged prisoner, teenage runaway; to those in institutions and those who have no home at all.

By giving to The Salvation Army, you give joy to a world that greatly needs it.

A Face For Doddie

" A FACE FOR DODDIE "

Eight years ago in Batesville, Mississippi, a terrible tragedy occured. Not a fire that destroyed a whole city or a tornado that left millions of people homeless. This tragedy happened to a seven year old girl named Doddie.

Doddie and her friends had decided to burn some leaves when the fire got out of contorl. They tried to put the fire out but to no avail. Doddie grabbed a rug hoping to smother the fire, not knowing it had been saturated with gasoline. The fire resulted in burns over 75% of Doddie's body, including her face. She has gone eight years with people teasing and mocking her.

Mrs. Sylvia Jones, a foster mother since 1954 in Pierce County for over one hundred children, heard about Doddie and called the Shriners in Tacoma asking for assistance. The hospital will provide plastic surgery for Doddie. What Mrs. Jones needs is for all of us to care by providing transportation and subsistence for Doddie and her mother upon arrival to our area. All contributions can be mailed to: FIRST INTERSTATE BANK, 11th St Branch, Tacoma, WA 98405 They need your help and I'm sure Doddie would appreciate it very much.

Scriptures

Psalms 121

"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth. He will not suffer thy foot to be moved; he that keepeth thee will not slumber. The Lord is thy keeper; the Lord is thy shade upon thy right hand. The sun shall not smite thee by day, nor the moon by night. The Lord shall preserve thee from evil; he shall preserve thy soul. The Lord shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth, and even for evermore.

Religious Films

Two religious films will be shown at Miles Memorial C.M.E. Church on November 20, 1981, starting at 7:00 p.m. Admission is free.

1. A Thief In The Night is a dramatic portrayal of what happened when Jesus Christ returns. This suspenseful story center around a young woman caught up in living for the present, with little concern about the future. The rapture predicted in bible prophecy takes place , leaving the young woman in a world which forces her to make a choice: wither for a life of fleeing the inevitable suffering and death; or for unite, a new world government which rejects Jesus Christ and forces citizens to receive the "mark" of the Beast. This movie portrays the Biblical predictions, "There will be no place to hide" Rev. 20:11

2) A Distant Thunder is a moving account of what may happen during the Great Tribulation. This film begins where A Theif In The Night ended. Now in prison, this young lady faces the choice of being branded with the mark of the Beast or dying as a martyr.

These classic films on Bible prophecy are powerful evangelistic film that has helped thousands to find salvation in Jesus Christ.

from Fatih That Smiles

Dare to be happy - Don't shy away, Reach out and capture the joy of Today!
Life is for living! Give it a try; Open your heart to that sun in the sky.
Dare to be loving, and trusting, and true;
Treasure the hours with those dear to you.

Dare to admit all your blessings, and then everyday cound them all over again.
Dare to be happy, don't be afraid---
This is the day which the Lord hath made!

One Ray-Just One

I was sinking down in-a-world of sin.

Feeling the world was against me and I had no hope within.

I though that everything was going wrong and nothing was going right

How many rays of sunshine does it take to make my dark world bright

My family's breaking up, each child going their separate way

Mother went home to meet Jesus and that hurts so much today

Sometimes I felt like giving up, but I had to stay right here and fight

How many rays of sunshine does it take to make my dark world bright?

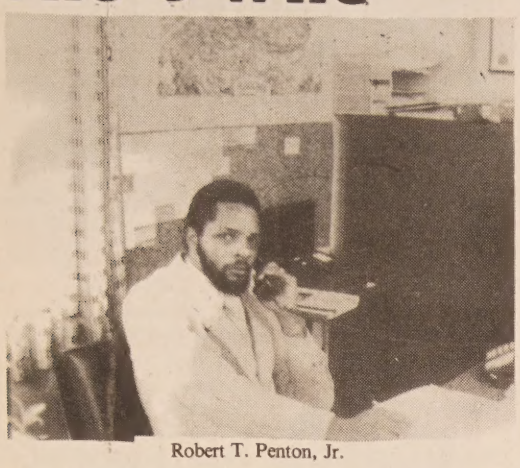
Jean Watley's Who's Who



Robert T. Penton, Jr.

The Eastside Community Church is responsible for a program called Family Life Formation Program headed by Robert T. Penton, Jr. A Christian Approach to Family Life Education and Life Skills Training

According to Penton this is a holistic education and training program grounded in Christain values and offered to the economically and socially disadvantaged families of Tacoma's East-side community, regardless of race, creed or color.

Penton's function is to make sure the individual/s participating in this program has a sound budget. He says most people have no idea of what a budget is. Many low income people believe that because they are low income there is no need to budget their money because there is nothing to budget.

"People must learn to live within their own resources.

"Families can best be served by learning how to help themselves. Preventative behavior is better therapeutic or rehabilitative treatment. We also believe that there is inherently built into the behavior of self-reliance a sense of self-esteem and personal dignity which allows persons to grow in community consciousness and respect for others who have shared with them the self-reliance process. All education and training activity is centered on achieving a level of self-reliance that is grounded in Christian values which have their antecedents in Sacred Scriptures.

The program goals are to establish continuous education and training cycles whereby groups of five families are participating in an on-going structured program that will enable them to fully function on their own in society independent of public assistance for food, clothing and shelter.

Penton contends that the church became laxed and neglectful in its responsibility to teach families how to survive and therefore fell into the hands of the government. He says, according the Book of Deuteronomy 15:7, the church needs to be made aware that the divine plan is to respond to the needs of the people.

He says that even though we learn from our mistakes, we keep making the same mistakes over and over again. If anything we need to be crying out to the Lord and not to Reagan. Be persuaded that serving the poor is God's will.

Now just how is the Family Life Formation Program fitting into this plan? Families are being effectively taught good stewartship practices. Webster's Dictionary defines a steward as one employed in a large household or estate to manage domestic concerns including supervision of servants, collection of rents, and keeping accounts. Or one appointed to supervise the provision and distribution of food and drink or one who actively directs affairs. So Penton believes that if people become better stewards and include prayer, they will learn to take care of what they have. He also believes that using the "Holistic" method can result in the financial needs being met and a total life ensues. A deeper commitment with daily application maximizes the total living process.

Penton has exercised this theory in his own life and found it to work. He is the father of 7 children which should certainly qualify him as an authority on the subject.

He conducts classes to teach families how to use these principles in their daily living habits. His students are learning to budget their money effectively regardless to the amount of income they have. If any of you are interested in more information about the Family Life Formation Program contact Mr. Penton at the Eastside Community Church located on 44th & Portland Avenue.

Black Men And White Women: The Paradox

It is often the case that a a significant number of black men who characterize themselves or are characterized by others, as "enemy," white women. Here is the paradox:Black men who verbally indicate their dislike of the white person also indicate their attraction to the white woman.

Loving the person whom you otherwise hate is difficult to conceptualize in a logical manner. Yet, it happens often. A common street expression goes like this, "I hate the white man but I love the white woman." This attitude is the result of insecurity which is an outgrowth of racism Everyone wants to be accepted by everyone else.

The antipathy expressed by the rejection. In a sense, this attitude is a way of the black person sayng to the white person, "I know that you do not like me, so I will let you know that I do not like you either. However, if you will accept me, I will modify my behavior toward you and display kindness toward you-because, in realty, I feel inferior to you and insecure in your company.

"But, if you will just give me a small indication that you find me to be acceptable, that you regard me as a person (even though an inferior person) that you do not find me completely despicable, I will shower you with love and affection. I will give you more love than you can ever give me. So, please show me that you like me more than I like myself."

The white woman is additionally drawn to the black man by the sexual mystic of the black man. This perceived of as having a sexual capability "superior" to that of the white man. This perceived capability is vested in the idea that black men have the ability to arouse white women and provide sexual satisfaction that white men cannot. White women seldom seslect black men for their intellectual capability.

Black men, for the most part who are attracted to white women are pleading for acceptance by the person to whom they feel a degree of inferiority. White women, for the most part, who are attracted to black men, are striving for acceptability and ego-enhancement which they are unable to find among members of their own race. Their rejection, or "perceived" rejection is so strong that they desperately search for acceptance.

The black man, himself rejected and insecure, is ready, willing and desperately in need of the accept ance and security that a white woman can offer.

The nature of our society is such that people constantly strive to enhance their egos. When a person is accepted by someone who is perceived of as being "just a little bit better" and rejects as "not quite good enough" the previous individual. This episode is repeated as the effort to be accepted by a "superior" person goes on and on.

The black man who says, "I hate being disliked by the white man but love the white woman," is saying, in reality "I hate being disliked by the white man but will do anything to be accepted even by a white woman." That acceptance may not be everything but it is "something."

Racism: What Should You Do?

by Dr. Charles W. Faulkner

What should you do to improve your own plight?

1) Stop waiting for someone else to lead you to freedom - you must take the initiative as a black individual to create your own opportunity.

2) Stop referring to other black people as: "Ugly, black so and so," and stop saying, "Black people are dumb." Stop making generalities about other black people that, in reality, cannot be proven.

3) Stop criticizing black people. Start praising black people for any minor achievement. Praise young children and help them to develop a positive self-image. Praise older black people and help to counteract the negative self-image that has been imposed upon them.

4) Start building upon your strong points. Get as much education as you can. Learn a skill if you wish. Explore the opportunities for jobs and for making this society a better one in which to live. The job market has changed drastically in the last two years and is likely to change again in the near future. Be prepared for what is to come.

5) Stop generalizing about how bad or good blacks are or about how bad or good whites are. If you want to be judged as an individual, judge others the same way.

6) Stop spending so much time talking about your particular negative experiences with white people. All black have similar experiences.

7) Join an organization that is actively and presently taking definite an clearly defined steps against racism. you are far more effective as a member of a dynamic organization than you are by yourself. The organization, on the other hand, is ineffective without your active participation.

8) Learn to live simply and non-luxuriously. Until you can afford to do better. Economic circumstances make it impractical to allow your ego and desire to motivate you to "out do" your friend and acquire extensive debts in the process. The street wise, uncomplicated, pragmatic individual is likely to out survive the person who is unable to adapt to society bereft of major social programs.

9) Start focusing your attention on the general cause of the problem of racism and provide viable solutions. In other words, stop complaining but start producing constructive ways of resolving the problem of racism in the immediate future.

To Be Equal

programs that are most needed by their poor constituents. Programs are more likely to be chosen and administered on the basis of who has the most local political clout.

But even if there was confidence in state and local governments, the fiscal crunch they are facing virtually ensures that they will not be able to deal with social problems as well as Washington-based programs do.

The Administration is dumping social programs onto cities at the same time that it cuts funds for those programs. Localizing control also means adding another layer of local government employees to administer those programs -- cutting deeper into the already shrinking program budgets.

The expectation that states and cities would add money to what they get from Washington is unrealistic. Those governments are financially strapped themselves. They are cutting services and losing tax revenues.

Most states tie their tax structure to Washington's so when Congress cut federal taxes it also wound up cutting state and local tax revenues.

Add to all this the uneven economic picture as it affects state finances, with energy-rich states enjoying tax revenues from oil, gas, and coal reserves and the older industrial states struggling to meet thier needs from a shrinking tax base.

Raising local taxes is politically difficult. Many states face taxpayer revolts that enacted limits on taxation and spending.

The enormous unmet needs of maintaining and replacing roads, bridges, sewers, and buildings slices into funds available for social services, especially since federal funds for those capital projects are also being cut sharply.

Meanwhile, lower tax rates in the upper brackets, tight money, and sky-high interest rates have just about cut local governments off from the traditional source of long-term funding -- the municipal bond market.

In effect, the Administration tells poor people to look to local government for help at the very moment when those governments are begining to get on the welfare line themselves.

An Independent View from Capitol Hill

BY HON. GUS SAVAGE
First Black journalist ever elected to Congress

This week I want to applaud the voters of Washington, D.C.

Voters in this predominantly Black city on November 3 overwhelmingly rejected a tuition tax credit proposal that would have allowed taxpayers to take a credit against their local income tax for public and private school costs! Some 90 percent of those voting opposed the measure.

If the proposal had been approved by District of Columbia voters -- and passed congressional and judicial scrutiny -- observers predicted that it would have spurred similar efforts in many cities with troubled school systems, as well as in Congress.

Senators Daniel Patrick Moynihan (D.-N.Y.), Robert Packwood (R.-Ore.), and William Roth (R.-Del.) have introduced a tuition tax credit bill (S. 550) that would provide a tax credit to those parents whose children are in elementary, secondary, college or vocational educational institutions. This bill calls for a $250 refundable credit in 1982, and a $500 refundable credit in 1983.

Similar, although not identical, measures are pending before the House Ways and Means Committee. More that 20 other tax credits bills have been introduced, and President Reagan has promised his own version of a tuition tax credit plan.

My reasons for being opposed to tuition tax credits are as follows:

first, I believe that public monies should be used to support public purposes. The concept of tuition tax credits represents a diversion of public monies for private purposes, because of revenues that would be lost to the U.S. Treasury. Among other broad public purposes, Federal monies should be used to improve the quality of public education. This would be much more difficult to accomplish if the increasingly limited Federal resources are further constrained by diversion of funds to private education.

Second, passage of tuition tax credits legislation would worsen the already serious Federal budget deficit that our nation faces. To this extent, then, tuition tax credits are not consistent with President Reagan's stated goal of achieving a balanced budget.

Third, statistical studies indicate that tuition tax credits would mostly benefit families of students who attend sectarian schools. This being the case, I am concerned that the Supreme Court would most likely find this legislation unconstitutional as violation of the separation of Church-State doctrine.

The tuition tax credit scheme fits neatly into the Reagan philosophy of always benefiting the rich at the expense of the poor. Taking money from a public school in a ghetto neighborhood and transfering it to a private school in an affluent neighborhood is in the same league as cutting the check of a welfare mother while decreasing the taxes of a millionaire.

After the Supreme Court's 1954 ruling against segregated schools, southern states engaged in massive resistance to get around desegregating their schools. Enacting tuition tax credits would revive these efforts by making available more funds, thereby providing a federal subsidy to violate the law.

As a matter of record, cities throughout the country have shown their objections to carrying out the mandate of the High Court. Court-ordered busing is labeled "forced busing" in many areas as school districts drag their feet and look for ways to get around the law.

I see no reason to give in or drop our guard just because the scheme is now taking a different form.

Jobs Not Bombs

by Laura Parks

The world wide observance of United Nations Disarmament Week was ushered in with spectacular success in Europe. In the staid and pristine precincts of Britain's Parliament Square the great banners of the United Nations fluttered between the British flags, a reminder to all that much of the world still regards the United Nations as a very valuable tool where man can still "jaw, jaw instead of war, war."

October 24th, 1981 will go down in British history as the day when ancient London Town witnessed its greatest protest demonstration against the proliferation of nuclear weapons on British soil. from early morning 200 trains brought the protestors from all corners of Britain.

In addition to the trains thousands of buses unloaded their cargoes of banners, floats, literature, musical instruments and inevitably tea, sugar, and milk to accompany the caravan of over a quarter of a million souls whose only concern was that Britain and Europe be denied as a nuclear battlefield to the superpowers.

A short while before in the capital city of West Germany an equally enthusiastic quarter of a million Germans took to the streets to demand that the United States abandon its efforts to make Western Europe into its nuclear arsenal and "expendible continent."

At this gathering three former German generals spoke about the dangers of nuclear weapons to Germany, Europe and the world. "Will the certain destruction of Europe guaranty victory to either the United States or the Soviet Union? Will not the great powers in a second fit of madness launch the weapons that will certainly destroy the rest of the world?", they asked.

The vast crowd in Bonn, West Germany vowed to bring a plague of havoc upon those who would turn Europe into a fiery nightmare of hell and everlasting death to man and all the creatures of the earth.

In London the old German Panzer commander asked the same questions and received the same enthusiastic promises that Europe will not become the tragic stage for an anihilating "Twilight of the Gods."

Between the West German protests and the British marches, the President of the United States managed to convey the idea that yes, he could see circumstances under which Europe could become the nuclear battleground between the United States and the Soviet Union. A most tragic remark.

It is safe to say that Western Europe has not been the same since. Suddenly the fight against stationing of nuclear weapons in Europe has escalated from attacking European governments to attacking the good name of the United States and accusing it of wishing to establish its domination over Europe.

Anti-Americanism is clearly on rise, especially among the youth, who ovewhelmingly march against the "Bomb" and who in former years were so much influenced and conditioned by American culture, ways, and democratic spirit. United States publicists in Europe have been very active trying to undo the damage of the Presidential remarks.

But at the London rally the leaders of the opposition Labor Party vowed to pull Britain away from nuclear disaster and to mount a campaign against "American Bombs."

With rising unemployment everywhere in Western Europe, internal and external political concerns have found their focus in the potent slogan of "Jobs not Bombs." It may, in the near future, become the rallying cry before which governments tremble and set Europe upon an independent course, free from both U.S. and U.S.S.R. entanglements and seeking, with urgency, closer and juster economic ties with the Third World.

Over the years the celebration of United Nations Disarmament Week was briefly noted. Within the past weks its importance has escalated beyond all expectations. It has suddenly become a crusade for human survival. It will not go away. It has given Europe renewed hope.

"It is the beautiful bird that gets caged." Chinese proverb

The Growth Of A Remarkable Artist

ANGELA BOFILL

Her "spectacular voice and dramatic style," were recently hailed by the reviewer for the Washington Post. She has been compared to all-time greats such as Billie, Ella, Sarah and Dinah. Angela Bofill, still in her twenties, is acknowledged by the music industry as this generation's no. 1 new female Jazz vocalist, but her talents go beyond jazz, as her third album, Something About You clearly demonstrates. The long-awaited LP, produced by Narada Michael Walden, finds Angela performing an impressive range of matierial.

The source of Angela's musical versatility comes in varying degrees from her heritage--her father is french-cuban and her mother Puerto Rican her early musical influences--The Supremes, Dionne Warwick, Billie Holiday--and her superior vocal ability (a two-and-a-half octave range that is comfortable in all musical styles). Her cultural background accounts for much of the Latin and R&B flavor of her performances, but her technique comes

Food FACTS

GIFT GIVING HOLIDAY BREADS

Surprise friends, negihbors, or dinner hosts with a gift of food dressed in the spirit of the season. A tin fo freshly baked confections or a basket of yeast breads are always welcome holiday surprises. Enclose a recipe card, and that warm holiday spirit is sure to last throughout the year. For a decorative gift-giving idea, try "Holiday Sour Cream Rings", flavored with raisins, candied fruit and a hint of brandy. One recipe bakes into three bread rings--specially developed for the hostess who has little time for baking. The real joy of Holiday Sour Cream Rings, however, lies in their convenience. The shaped rings may be prepared ahead, when time allows, and wrapped for freezing. Later, simply thaw unbaked bread and allow to rise, then bake.

The addition of sour cream lends a special tanginess to the bread, while a light sprinkling of spices complements the marinated fruits. REAL dairy sour cream--for the holidays, or any time.

HOLIDAY SOUR CREAM RINGS

2 envelopes active dry yeast
¼ cup warm water
2 large eggs, beaten
2/3 cup sugar
1 pint dairy sour cream
1 -½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon mace
½ teaspoon cardamom
5-½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, divided
7 tablespoons melted butter, divided
½ cup chopped raisins
½ cup finely chopped candied pineapple
½ cup finely chopped candied cherries
1 tablespoon brandy
Glaze*
Candied fruit for decoration (optional)

Have all ingredients at room temperature before starting to mix dough. Sprinkle yeast over warm water in rge mixing bowl; let stand until softened. Add eggs, sugar and sourcream. Add salt, speice, and 3 cups flour; beat until smooth. Gradually add remaining flour alternately with 6 tablespoons melted butter, forming a moderately stiff dough. Knead a few minutes and shape into ball; place in lightly greased bowl. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled, 1 to 1½ hours. Meanwhile, mix chopped raisins and candied fruit with brandy, set aside. When dough has risen, turn out onto floured board. Pat out to a 16 x 12-inch rectangle and sprinkle evenly with marinated fruit. Fold over to enclose fruit and knead lightly to distribute. Divide dough into thirds. Working with one protion at a time, divide in half and shape each piece into a strand about 16 inches long. Intertwine the two strips 7 or 8 times, joining ends to form a ring about 7 inches in diameter. Place in greased 8-inch cake pan, or on greased baking sheets. Repeat with remaining dough, making 3 rings. Brush each with a protion of the remaining tablespoon butter. Let rise until dough is light to the touch, about 3/4 hour. Bake in 350 degree oven 30 to 35 minutes. Cool rings slightly; add Glaze* and decorate with additional candied fruit, if desired. Makes 3 rings.
*GLAZE: For each ring, blend 2/3 cup sifted powdered sugar with 2 teaspoons orange juice.
NOTE: Shaped rings may be frozen and baked later. Cover and freeze firm, then wrap for storage. Allow frozen rings to thaw, then rise before baking.

Moore Proposes Anti-Child Molester Bill!

Word came to Senator Ray Moore, D-Seattle, last week that an 11-year-old boy in a small Puget Sound community saw a television appeal by former basketball star Bill Russell, then informed a police officer that he had been sexually molested by a neighbor for over a year but did not know he could tell anyone.

The police officer said Bill Russell's message had brought four other youngsters forward to report similar incidents in the same community.

Moore has introduced a measure seeking a legislative recommendation to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to carry Bill Russell's message to Washington's 800,000 school children.

"We're in a situation where we cannot ask for money for new programs and I do not think should expect our schools to assume responsibility for teaching things that are better left to family and church," Moore said.

"But in each class of 30 children, it is likely that four or five are being sexually molested," Moore said, referring to current estimates that one of every four girls and one of every ten boys are victims of sexual abuse. "Some of those incidents occur in the home," he said.

Co-sponsoring the measure with Moore are Seattle Senators Phil Talmadge, Al Williams, Don Charnley and George Fleming.

"Our bill does not ask for much," Moore said. "If Bill Russell and Dr. Jennifer James can get the message across in 60 seconds, we're asking the school system to include some simple training materials for health education teachers on how to advise children that they can avoid becoming victims and how to get help if they are victims.

"It's too serious a problem to ignore," he said. "In King County alone, more than 700 childrenb were brought to the Harborview Sexual Assault Center last year. Half were victims of incest." And, Moore added, probably only ten percent of the actual incidence of sexual abuse of children is being reported.

Pilot programs are being offered in some schools in Seattle, Bellevue, Lake Washington, Tacoma, Olympia and Spokane, Moore said, "but we should carry the message to the best of our ability within current resources to as many children parents and teachers as possible."

The measure is supported by Dr. James, a Seattle psychologist, and others who deal on a daily basis with the problem, Moore said. He has asked the Senate Education Committee to schedule a hearing on the proposal during the current legislation session.

MICHAEL JACKSON

Who is Michael Jackson? He is the football player for the Seahawks, not the singer of the Jackson Five(or should I say the singer by himself). Seattle has won two games in a row! One reason is a linebacker name Michael Jackson, a U of W graduate. Everytime the ball is in the air or on the ground, he is around somewhere. The guy, to me, is one of the best linebackers in the NFL. He has the stamina, courage, personality and God given talent to be a successful football player and a person the community can be proud of. Michael, keep up the good work!....The Huskies are in a good position now to take the Pac-10 and, consequently, a Rose Bowl bid. The showdown with the Washington State Cougars is this weekend. I predict the Huskies will prevail. Too much "Defense" - "a lot of Tacoma Talent" will make the difference.....The Baker Bulldogs are still the best in the junior High football circuit. While, the Truman Titans are the team to watch out for in the junior High basketball picture this year.....The Sportmans Resturant lost two thrillers in the Puyallup ¼tourney this weekend. T.N. Miller and the Rhinelander Square off in a pool league contest. Good Luck T.N. - you are going to need it!..... Congratulations to the U.P.S. Loggers for completing a undefeated season.....Don't forget the Basketball Tourney Dec. 18, 19, and 20th, at the boys club.

The father and mother of Seahawk John Harris, #44 were visitors at the Monday night slaughter of the San Diego Chargers. Pictured above is Richard Harris of Miami Fa. (1) John's wife Connie and Tacoman John Malloy. Glenda Malloy is John's Godmother.

Three In A Row

The Seattle Seahawks, winners in three of their last four games, face the Kansas City Chiefs Sunday in an 11 a.m. PST game at Arrowhead Stadium.

The Seahawks (4-7) are coming off back-to-back wins over the Pittsburgh Steelers, 24-21, and the San Diego Chargers, 44-23, while the Chiefs (7-4) are just one game behind Denver in the AFC West title chase.

"If one thing has sparked our confidence in recent weeks, it is Theotis Brown," says Seattle wide receiver Steve Largent. "He has been a key addition."

Since Brown became a starter the Seahawks have posted a 3-1 record. The 6-3, 225-pound, third year pro from UCLA, WHO WAS ACQUIRED IN A TRADE EARLIER THIS YEAR WITH THE St. Louis Cardinals, started for the first time against the New York Jets.

He gained 104 yards on 14 carries in a 19-3 win against the Jets; had 80 yards rushing on 17 carries in a 34-24 loss to Green Bay; rushed for 43 yards on 18 carries and scored two touchdowns along with catching seven passes for 68 yards in the win over the Steelers; and had 83 yards on 18 carries with two scores against the Chargers.

"It's not just my running," says Brown, "I've had a super supporting cast. Once the running game gets going it takes a lot of pressure off of Jimmy (Zorn). I've seen confidence build in the offensive line. They've had great poise.

"I hope these last two wins are the springboard to a successful season."

Seattle's offense scored on eight straight possessions against the Chargers, while the defensive unit contributed a goal line stand, a Michael Jackson pass interception and three fumble recoveries.

Following the goal line stand, fullback Dan Doornink scored on an 80-yard pass from Zorn to cap a 99-yard drive in five plays. It was Doornink's fourth touchdown reception in the last three games.

"When I was in New York," says Doornink, who joined the Seahawks in a 1979 trade with the New York Giants, "I was tagged as a fast fullback and was timed consistently in 4.5. Here I've been termed a slow fullback.

"I don't know why the difference," the former Washington State star says. "I'm a little lighter this year, but I really don't think I'm faster."

The Chiefs are coming off a 23-10 win over Houston. Rookie running back Joe Delaney, who ranks second among AFC rushers with 920 yards on 189 carries, gained a club record 193 yards on 29 carries against the Oilers and needs just 167 yards to break Mike Garrett's team single-season record of 1,087.

Since Brown became a starter the Seahawks have posted a 3-1 record. The 6-3, 225-pound, third year pro from UCLA, who was acquired in a trade earlier this year with the St. Louis Cardinals, started for the first time against the New York Jets.

Rosey, who has made a successful switch from tackle to actor, joins the other linesmen in singing a lament that partially says "every game's the same old story, we take the pain and the backs get the glory." That's the theme of their song. The star line-up for the show includes Elizabeth Taylor, Olivia Newton-John, Michael Conrad from "Hill ST. How To Get The Most Out Of Cable TV

A workshop to teach Pacific Northwest community and religious leaders and local government officials how to get the most out of cable television will be held in the St. Thomas center here December 10-12 under the auspices of the United Church of Christ's Office of Communication.

Co-sponsored by Minorities in Cable and the christian Church (Disciples of Christ) Office of Communication, the intensive training session is the second of six regional workshops which are part of a nationwide program mounted by the United Church's communication office to educate citizens about the function and use of cable television.

Initial funding for the project has been provided by the church agency, Westinghouse broadcasting Corporation (Group W), the Teleprompter Corporation, UA-Columbia Cablevision Inc. and the Veatch Program of the North Shore Unitarian Society, Plandome, NY. Additional funding is being sought from all major operators.

"It is important for all citizens to know how cable functions technically and from a business standpoint and to realize its potential usefulness to individuals and the community," explains the Rev. Dr. Everett C. Parker, director of the United Church's Office of Communication. "We are particularly anxious to have the civic, cultural, minority, health, educational and service organizations that are vital to a community's life make the fullest use of cable."

the workshop will be conducted with a formal curriculum prepared by Jane S. Baron, director of the educational program, and Sue Miller Buske, executive director of the National Federation of Local Cable Programmers.

Workshop teachers will focus on such subjects as basic cable technology; how communities should go about preparing, granting and enforcing franchises for cable systems; the economics of cable operation; the role of private citizens and community organizations in developing community policies for cable services; how cable television can be integrated into community life; what services can be expected from cable systems now and in the future; what access local citizens can expect to have to cable for their programs; how to finance and operate a local access center, and how to do local programming.

The training session will alos examine minority rights in cable. Comments Gracie Nettingham, founder and director of Minorities in Cable:Cable television is having a profound impact on our large cities. If minority communities are to share in this powerful medium, we must act now. To ensure that our homes are wired for cable and to see that programming reflects minority interests, we must become involved in the franchinsing process and make use of community access facilities. To defend our right to jobs in the cable industry, we must monitor systems' equal employment practices and struggle against discrimination where it occurs. To become part of the industry itself, we must mount or support minority entrepreneural efforts."

Leaders for the Pacific Northwest workshop include Dr. Parker; Ms. Baron; Ms. Buske; Ms. Nettingham; Art Alexander, Black Channel Coordinator, Cable Systems Pacific, Portland, OR; frank Greif, Seattle Cable Commissioner and chairman of the National Association of Telecommunications Officers and Advisors; Adam Haas, program supervisor, Cable Systems Pacific; Pila Laronal, producer, Seattle Indian Center; Lesley Ann Page, Cable coordinator, Office of Communication, United Church of Christ; Alan Pearce, professor of international business, University of Maryland, College Park and professor of economics, George Washington Univeristy, Washington, DC; David M. Rice, associate professor of communications law and associate director of the Communications Media Center, New York Law School, New York City; the Rev. Eugene A. Schneider, deputy director, Office of Communication; Gary schober, technical director, Alternate Media Center, New York University, New York City; George Stoney, professor at New York University and independent producer; Marlene Weglin, CABLELEARN, University of Washington, Seattle, and William Wright, Cable Communications Office, Seattle.

from a serious study of music. After graduating Hunter College High School, Angie went on to refine her talents at the Manhattan School of Music and the Hartford Conservatory.

Angie was released in November 1978 to unanimous critical praise and popular success, amassing sales of over a quarter of a million albums and climbing the jazz and pop charts. It was truly a contemporary Cinderella story, and Bofill proved it was no fluke by following it up with Angel Of The Night, an LP that found her winning even more accolades and awards from the music industry. Something About You, her finest achievement yet, continues to show the growth of a remarkable artist, and an artist who credits spiritual and physical awareness with her creative success. "It's just having faith," she told one interviewer. "Whatever you want to call this force or power, it is definitely with us. All we have to do is open our spiritual eyes and not be afraid to let it come in."
